

OUTREACH TRAINING · MODULE 01

Meta Ads, in plain English.

Everything you need to understand the product you're selling. Read this once and you'll be able to have a real conversation with any salon or med spa owner.

LUMEN QUICK REFERENCE

INSTAGRAM

@lumenmarketing.co

WEBSITE

lumenmarketing.co

01 What is a "Meta Ad"?

"Meta" is the company that owns Facebook and Instagram. A "Meta Ad" is any paid post that shows up on someone's feed, story, or Reels.

If you've ever scrolled Instagram and seen a post with a small "Sponsored" tag in the top-left, that was a Meta Ad. Some business paid Meta to put that post in front of you.

THE SHORT VERSION

Meta Ads are paid posts. Businesses pay Meta to show their stuff to people who don't follow them yet.

02 Why do businesses need them?

Organic posts barely reach anyone. If a salon posts something to their Instagram, only about 2 to 5% of their existing followers will actually see it. And it doesn't reach anyone NEW at all.

Meta Ads are the only way to consistently put their offer in front of new potential customers in their area, every single day, without relying on word-of-mouth or hoping the algorithm helps them.

What they get from running Meta Ads

- New customers walking through the door. Not followers. Real bookings, real revenue.
- Predictable lead flow. They know how many leads they'll get per dollar spent.
- Local targeting. Ads only show to people within X miles of their salon.
- Trackable results. They can see exactly which ad brought in which client.

03 How they actually work (simple version)

Here's the whole thing in 5 steps:

1. Goal. A business decides what they want: more bookings, more website traffic, more leads.
2. Budget. They set how much they want to spend per day or per month (usually $1,000 to $5,000+ per month for a small business).
3. Audience. They tell Meta who to show the ad to: location, age, gender, interests. For a med spa, that might be "women 28 to 55 living within 15 miles of the salon who are interested in beauty and wellness."
4. Creative. They give Meta a video or image, plus a few lines of text and a button (like "Book Now" or "Get Quote").
5. Run + optimize. Meta shows the ad. Some people click. Some book. Whoever's running the ads watches what's working and adjusts daily.

WHY THIS MATTERS FOR YOU

Every salon and med spa owner you talk to has either tried Meta Ads themselves and failed, hired someone to do it badly, or thought about it and never pulled the trigger. You're not selling them on a new idea. You're selling them on a competent team to finally do it right.

04 Why this works so well for med spas and hair salons

These businesses are perfect for Meta Ads, and that's why we're starting you here:

They're local

Meta is the best platform on the planet for targeting within a specific radius. A salon needs people within 10 to 15 miles, and Meta delivers exactly that.

They're visual

Before-and-after photos, transformations, in-the-chair content. This stuff was made for Instagram and stops the scroll cold.

Their customers are on Instagram

Women aged 25 to 55, the core demographic for beauty and wellness, are heavy Instagram users. That's where they research and book.

One client pays for the month

A single new med spa client is worth $500 to $3,000+ in lifetime value. They only need one or two new bookings to make our $2,500 fee back.

05 What Lumen actually does for them

When a salon signs on with us for Meta Ads, here's everything that happens:

- We set up their ad account properly (most are broken or missing tracking).
- We install the Meta Pixel on their website so we can see exactly who books and what works.
- We write the ads: scripts, hooks, copy. We tell them what to film, or we send a UGC creator if they don't have content.
- We build the campaigns: audiences, budgets, bidding, targeting.
- We launch and optimize weekly. The first 2 weeks are testing. Then we scale what's working.
- We send weekly updates and run a monthly performance call to walk through results.

The salon owner doesn't have to touch anything. That's the whole pitch.

06 The pricing, in your words

Here's how to talk about pricing without sounding like you're reading a script:

" How much does this cost? "

"Our entry-level package starts at $2,500 a month and that covers full management of your ad account." If they push, mention the Pro tier at $3,500 and Full Funnel OS at $4K setup + $4-5K/mo. That's it. Don't volunteer everything at once.

" Does that include the ad spend? "

"No, that's separate. The $2,500 is what you pay us to run your ads. The ad spend goes directly to Meta and is whatever budget makes sense for you, usually $1,000 to $3,000 a month to start."

" Are you guaranteed to get me X leads? "

Never promise specific numbers. Say: "We don't make guarantees. What we will do is build a system that's measurable from day one so you'll know exactly what's working and what isn't. Most of our med spa clients are profitable within the first 60 days."

07 Common objections + how to handle them

" I've tried Meta Ads before and they didn't work. "

"That's the most common thing I hear. Most agencies are bad at this. We'd love the chance to show you why we're different. Worst case, you spend 20 minutes on a call and walk away with some free insights."

" That's too expensive. "

"Totally hear you. What's the lifetime value of one of your average clients? [Wait for an answer.] So if we bring you even 2 to 3 new clients in a month, the package pays for itself. The goal is making you money, not adding an expense."

" I don't have time for this. "

"That's exactly why we do this for you. You don't have to film anything, write anything, or check anything. We just need 30 minutes a month for a check-in call."

" Let me think about it / talk to my partner. "

Don't let them off the hook with a "maybe." Say: "Of course. While I have you, what specifically do you want to think about? If there's a concern I can address right now, let's get it out of the way."

" My social media manager already does this. "

"Got it. Are they running paid Meta Ads specifically, or are they posting organically? Most social media managers post content but don't actually run paid campaigns. They're two completely different skill sets."

08 Qualifying questions before you hand them off

Before you book a call with Kendall, make sure you've gotten clear answers to these. If they can't answer 'yes' to the first three, don't book the call.

1. Are they the decision maker? If not, can they get the decision maker on the call with us? (You'll hit a lot of social media managers and assistants. Politely ask to talk to the owner.)
2. Can they spend at least $2,500/mo on us + $1,000/mo on ads? If they balk at $3,500/mo total, they're not ready yet.
3. Are they actively trying to get more clients? Sounds obvious but some owners just want to chat. We want owners with a real growth goal.
4. What are they doing right now for marketing? (Helps Kendall tailor the call.)
5. How many new clients do they want per month? (Sets expectations.)
6. Have they tried Meta Ads before? If so, what happened? (Sets up the win.)

09 The handoff to Kendall

When someone is qualified and interested:

1. Send them your booking link (Kendall's calendar). Confirm a day and time live in the DM if possible.

2. Push them straight into the CRM with a note: their name, business, what they said, when they're booked.
3. Drop a quick note in the WhatsApp group: "New booking. [name] from [business], [day/time], wants Meta Ads."
4. Move on. Don't sit on a single lead. Your job is volume of qualified conversations.

REMEMBER

You're not closing the deal. You're qualifying interest and booking the call. Kendall and the team close. Your win is a booked, qualified appointment on the calendar.

10 Ten outreach templates that actually work

Don't pitch in the first message. Open a real conversation. Below are ten openers in different styles. Mix and match. Personalize each one before you send (mention something specific you noticed on their page). Generic copy-paste reads like a bot and gets ignored.

BEFORE YOU SEND ANY OF THESE

Make sure your IG bio has @lumenmarketing.co linked so anyone you DM can verify we're a real agency at a glance. That single move dramatically increases reply rates.

01 Specific compliment opener

"Hey [name], your recent balayage transformation post stopped my scroll. Color work is incredible. Quick question, are you running any paid Instagram ads right now to bring in new clients, or is it mostly word of mouth?"

02 Pixel observation

"Hey [name], I work with med spas across California and noticed your booking page isn't running a Meta Pixel. Are you doing any paid ads right now? Happy to share what's been working for our other clients over at @lumenmarketing.co."

03 Direct + transparent

"Hey [name], we run Meta Ads for med spas in California (@lumenmarketing.co). Curious. What does your new client acquisition look like right now? Mostly referrals, or do you have paid stuff going too?"

04 Result-led case study

"Hey [name], one of our med spa clients in CA booked 47 new consults last month from $1,800 in ad spend. Saw your spa and the offer looks like a perfect fit for the same playbook. Open to a quick chat?"

05 Capacity question

"Hey [name], random question. If you had 10 extra new clients on the books next month, would your team be ready or would that break something? Asking because we run Meta Ads for salons and that's usually the bottleneck we run into."

06 Permission-based

"Hey [name], mind if I share something? Spent a few minutes on your IG and spotted a couple easy fixes that could turn more of your followers into actual bookings. Want me to send a quick voice note breaking it down?"

07 Competitive framing

"Hey [name], a couple of the bigger med spas in your area are spending heavy on Meta Ads right now. Are you defending that ground or mostly relying on Google and referrals at this point?"

08 Curiosity hook

"Hey [name], quick one. What's your client acquisition plan looking like for the next quarter? We run Meta Ads for salons and med spas (you can peep our work at @lumenmarketing.co). Trying to see if we'd be a fit before I waste either of our time."

09 Soft, no-pressure intro

"Hey [name], not pitching anything. Just wanted to drop our IG (@lumenmarketing.co) in case Meta Ads ever come up for your salon. We've helped over a dozen med spas in California get fully booked. Reach out anytime."

10 Pain-point opener

"Hey [name], honest question. Are you happy with how many new bookings you're pulling in each month? We help salons in California fix the lead-flow problem with Meta Ads. Worth 10 minutes to see if it'd make sense for you?"

Three rules that beat any template:

1. Keep it short. Under 60 words. They're scrolling, not reading.
2. Ask a real question. Statements get ignored. Questions get responses.
3. Don't pitch in the first DM. Open the conversation. Pitch only after they reply with interest.